The UK's largest bathroom and kitchen supplier, PJH Group, has re-vamped its web site, www.pjhgroup.com to offer a more comprehensive and enhanced site for its broad customer base spanning the independent retail, merchant, building and major retail market sectors.

Talking of the new web site, Ecommerce & Corporate Marketing Manager, Sally Hough said: "Re-designed with a fresh new look, that is more in tune with our corporate image, the site is now easier to navigate and provides us with a striking on-line presence that is easily updated to provide customers with the latest communications from our company."

Redesigned to reflect the major business PJH Group is today, the new corporate web site has been developed to cater for all its customer groups offering more information and a greater understanding of the scale of all PJH's services.

In depth information focussing on services such as logistics, product management and installation, as well as details on product portfolios presents the browser with helpful and useful facts and figures about the company.

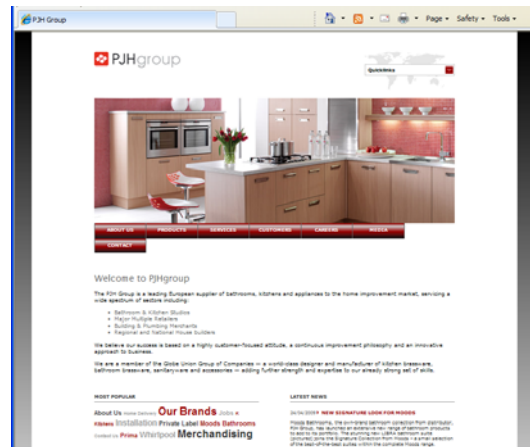

"With more and more businesses using the internet to source information we wanted to ensure our website was operating effectively. Initial responses to the new web site are good, already creating far more interaction and interest", continued Sally.
